

The following article is from the news archive. Please note that some links may no longer work.

City Offers Business Tax Seminar

Attend this great resource for new businesses to learn about Denver taxes.

Related Links

- Treasury Division
- Assessor's Office
- Online Tax Guide
- Business Personal Property Records

OCTOBER 11, 2005 -- Are you a new business owner who is confounded by Denver's tax laws? Or, do you work for an established business that might need a refresher? If so, the city is offering a helpful seminar to answer all of your business tax questions.

The free Tax Seminar will take place from 1-3 p.m. on Monday, October 17 at the Virginia Village Library, located at 1500 S. Dahlia Street.

The seminar includes a comprehensive presentation about Denver's tax laws, and will conclude with a question and answer period offered by tax specialists from Denver's Treasury Division and the Denver Assessor's Office.

Participants will learn about sales, use, lodger's and occupational privilege taxes; how to obtain a sales tax license; what forms are required and how to file tax returns; business personal property taxes, and tax-related consequences involved with buying or selling a business.

To reserve a seat for this seminar, or to get on a notification list for future seminars, call 720-865-7212.

Written by Betsy Kimak, Internet Site Administrator, Customer Information Services.

-- Last updated on October 11, 2005

